

Master Clinician, Renal Division, Brigham and Women's Hospital,
Harvard Medical School

The Renal Division at the Brigham and Women's Hospital is searching for a board certified Master Clinician who will provide expert consultative renal care in the outpatient and inpatient setting to patients with renal disease. The Master Clinician will participate in strategic planning and expand innovative clinical services.

We seek an accomplished clinician-educator with a track record of outstanding clinical care and the proven abilities in clinical practice, educational scholarship, teaching excellence, communication systems improvement and management skills. Participation in clinical and translational studies will be considered an asset. The successful applicant will have at least five years of post-training experience and will assume the appropriate academic rank of Instructor, Assistant or Associate Professor in Medicine at Harvard Medical School commensurate with qualifications and experience.

BWH is an Equal Opportunity Employer; women and other minorities are encouraged to apply.

Candidates should submit their CV to:
